BOCA RATON, Fla.--(Business Wire)--

Which EB5, a leading immigrant advocacy organization, are celebrating today with news confirming 31 of their EB-5 visa regional center applicants have received approval of I-526 (conditional Green Card) petitions in the first quarter of 2009, maintaining the organization's 100% success record while bringing the total number of successful EB-5 regional center applicants assisted to over 100.

"These thirty-one approvals are spread over various regional centers confirming our belief that clients have different investment and visa requirements which are best served by advising on the widest choice of regional center, rather than a single option," said Stephen Parnell, joint managing partner of Which EB5 www.WhichEB5.com.

Clients of Which EB-5 are typically from a number of countries including the UK, Europe, Canada, China and India. A number already live in the USA - some moved to America many years ago on E2 or L-1 visas and became concerned about the need to reapply to remain in the USA.

"These statistics are very encouraging but behind them lie some interesting stories of why immigrants decided to use our services when taking the life changing decision to leave their home country and relocate to the USA," said Andrew Bartlett, joint managing partner of Which EB5.

The current rules of the EB-5 visa pilot program require each immigrant investor to show that the invested funds will create ten American jobs. Immigrants investing $500,000 in a federally designated regional center can be eligible for a Green Card and ultimately US citizenship.
